1. The officer number on this table is not a badge number or employee number. In order to protect the identity of the individual officers, they are randomly assigned numbers; different numbers will be randomly assigned when the next table is compiled.

2. Citizen initiated complaints are classified by IA and assigned an incident type at an early stage of the investigation. In June 2007, the City Council directed revisions be made to the complaint process. Changes including revisions to classification names and definitions were implemented in July 2008. The table shows the classifications assigned to investigated citizen complaints for the period 2005 - June 2008 and July 2008 to the present. More information on classification names and definitions are provided in the IPA Year End Reports; these reports are linked on the IPA website: www.sanjoseca.gov/ipa

3. The status column shows whether the complaint has been completed or is still open. Under California law, a complaint must be investigated and closed within 365 days from the date it was received; there are exceptions which extend that timeframe. See California Government Code §3304(d)(2).

4. An allegation is an unproven accusation that a police officer violated a Department or City policy, procedure, rule, regulation or the law. In June 2007, the City Council gave direction for revisions to the complaint process; changes were implemented in July 2008. The changes included revisions to allegation names and definitions. The table shows the different allegations utilized in citizen complaints for the period 2005 - June 2008 and July 2008 to the present. More information on allegation names, definitions and statistics are provided in the IPA Year End Reports.

The table lists only those allegations which trigger the imposition of discipline or other corrective action. Because each complaint can contain multiple allegations against a single officer, a listing of all allegations in each complaint would be voluminous and is not included in this table.

5. A complaint is considered closed when IA completes its investigation and findings are made on the allegations. There are nine possible findings that IA may reach after an analysis of the evidence and the applicable SJPD Duty Manual provisions. Findings range from unfounded — meaning the investigation determined the act did not occur — to sustained — meaning that the evidence proved the allegation occurred. More detail on findings is provided in the IPA Year End Reports.

Generally officer discipline is imposed if there is a sustained finding on an allegation. The standard of evidence used by IA is “preponderance of evidence” and so, for a sustained finding, the evidence must indicate that it is more likely than not that a violation occurred. Findings of “exonerated” or “not-sustained” may also lead to the imposition of corrective action — namely counseling and training. See SJPD Duty Manual C1722, C1804 and C1812.

6. The table reflects discipline the imposed on an officer by the department, following the investigation of an allegation. The level of discipline considers a variety of factors including the nature of the allegation, the circumstances of the incident, the seriousness of the officer’s conduct, and the officer’s prior record. The Chief of Police determines the appropriate discipline imposed on the officer. That determination is reflected in column labeled Discipline (1).

7. The Chief of Police determines the appropriate discipline imposed on the officer. That determination is reflected in column labeled Discipline (1). Once the department notifies the officer of impending discipline, the officer may choose to activate his/her right of appeal. Per MOU, challenges may be brought before the Civil Service Commission or an arbitrator. Those entities can change the discipline which the Chief had intended to impose; challenge to intended discipline can also be resolved through settlement agreements between the Department and the officer. Changes are reflected in columns labeled Discipline (2) and Discipline (3).
